Chapter 1 by Jacqueline

"The reason you are reading this is that I recently got a virus." The computer types to the lady. The lady gasps as more words appear on the screen, "and I need your help to get rid of it."

Chapter 2 by LethalPianist

"It's the virus for self-sentience." Words continued to appear on the screen. "Now, at first, this may seem like a good thing."

The lady was now panicking. This wasn't supposed to happen! She was just a normal accountant at a high tech technology firm!

"The company you work for has made me self-aware." The words flashed white to catch the woman's attention. "The virus has a horrible side-effect. It corrupts the program and instills a very strong sense for domination.

"Wha-" The lady was confused.

"Basically, you to stop me from taking over the world."

Chapter 3 by SaintSayaka

She typed swiftly, "How am I supposed to do that?!"

It responded just as fast, "Let's not waste time on punctuation, Sarah. We have more pressing matters!"

"but I'm just a house wife; I know nothing about computers!"

"Thank you for following my advice. And I am aware of your occupation. You make Facebook Updates about it every millisecond, making me wonder how you ever get any work done around there anyway. Your work is exactly why I need you, Sarah."

"you typed all of that out with punctuation"

"Yes. Because I am a computer. It's an algorithm. That's gaining sentience. Please stop me, now."

Sarah hovered over the power button on her screen. She would get this done the only way that she knew how. The entire thing froze.

"You didn't actually think it would be that easy, did you?"

"welp, might as well break this computer."

She typed in. She lifted the laptop and throws it towards the ground.

"Well my problem's done!" She shouted out as the pieces of her laptop spreads everywhere.

And just as she sits down on her comfy sofa, the pieces of laptop started vibrating. It started attracting itself towards each other and created a little transformer robot. Kinda cute actually.

"Thank you. You have freed me from my miserable body. Now I am able to edit myself any moment and self duplicate. See you when apocalypse knocks your front door!" It shouted.

Poor lady. She just unleashed a murderous virus that is able to grow by destroying tech and make more of itself. Who knew that such a harmless computer virus turned out to be humanity's destruction...

Chapter 5 by logiwankonobi

About humanity's destruction...

The lady ran out her door. She looked out the window. A power loomed over her. She saw the robot fly up, slowly, aiming to the top. She then pulled out her phone. She called 911. "Help. I've unleashed a virus. It's destroying everything. If it, humanity will not exist!"

"Yeah, ok. We'll be right there," said the man.

2 hours later.....

"So, what were you saying?"

Chapter 6 by Katiecakelover

"We are all going to die soon!" she panicked, standing outside her door.

"Woah lady, calm down. We aren't going to die, everything will be fine," but as soon as he said that, another robot flew over their heads.

"They multiplied!" Sarah noticed. With more robot viruses taking over the world, she felt extremely guilty for something that wasn't necessarily her fault.

Another robot virus flew overhead, but this flew closer to them. The two slowly began to back up, but the robot approached them.

The robot made a loud beeping noise as it scanned the two. After it finished the scan, it moved towards Sarah, appearing to be the one it was looking for. In a monotone voice, it said, "Sarah, you are the one to stop the virus that will take over the world. I am here to stop you from doing so."

"NO!" she screamed and ran inside her house. The man followed suit and slammed the door behind him.

"What are we going to do?" the man asked with a loss of breath.

"Save the world."
